Search for Creativity Leads To Asia's Paradise Rivers

by Eli Flam

"Getting into photography," says Carolyn Drake, "was my way of finding a creative outlet, of continuing to learn – and of getting out of the bubble of my New York life."

The 1989 Eleanor Roosevelt High School graduate has gone on to Ukraine, Turkey and Central Asia. Her work won a Guggenheim fellowship this year and first place in highly competitive photography competitions.

Paradise Rivers – a term used by medieval Islamic writers – is what she calls her ongoing project in Central Asia.

"My interest in the region," says Drake, "has to do with its history as one of the early places where human life evolved. It also was a path where Islam spread in the 9th, 10th, 11th centuries."

She sees irony in the project's name because the fate of the rivers "is not pretty." Their waters were massively diverted for irrigation in the days of the Soviet Union. Yet she believes that this "faraway place . . . holds some clues about the impact that human beings can have on the earth and that empires can have on cultures."

Born in California, Carolyn Drake came to Greenbelt with her parents when she was six years old. Efforts by family and friends to counter nuclear proliferation and the Cold War "stuck in my mind and probably contributed to my interest in later exploring countries that came into being when the Soviet Union divided."

New American Citizens Inducted in Greenbelt

by Renauta York

For those gathered, the moment had finally arrived!

This past Sunday, June 6 at 1 p.m., the Greenbelt Community Center buzzed with excitement, flashbulbs and waving American flags as 47 citizens from Asia, South and Central America, Africa and Canada gathered with their families in the gym to take part in a ceremony they had long waited for – becoming American citizens.

The ceremony began with everyone rising as the Greenbelt Police Department Honor Guard processed with the American and Maryland flags. Peter Haas sang the Star Spangled Banner. With Mayor Judith Davis serving as master of ceremonies and Councilmembers Emmett Jordan, Leta Mach and Edward Putens also present, Davis offered her congratulations and commended the inductees on their determination, faith and courage in taking the oath of allegiance.

She told the story about when she worked the polls in the last election. A man and his pregnant wife were days away from delivery. Both had just become citizens, had registered to vote and were determined to do so. Davis quoted the man as saying "My child will be born a citizen. I want him to know that we voted as naturalized citizens."

Will Donahue, the acting administrative director of the U.S. Citizen and Immigration Service, also spoke. "Today is a pivotal day for the rest of your lives," he said. "Look around you. You're young. You're going to be the face of America."

Donahue focused on Gandhi's quote, "A Nation's culture resides in the heart and soul of its people."

"This resides in you to make this country great," Donahue said. "It's not the end of the path but

Md. Women's Heritage Center To Open in Baltimore June 19

by Virginia Beauchamp

"History and herstory have converged and the time has come!" This was the message at the pre-opening celebration of the Maryland Women's Heritage Center and Museum. The event took place on Tuesday morning, May 25 at the start-up site facility at 39 West Lexington Street in Baltimore.

Activists and prime movers in development of the Center were Greenbelter Linda Shevitz, education equity specialist for the Maryland State Department of Education, and Jill Moss Greenberg of Hyattsville, a leader with many roles in the women's movement in Maryland since its beginning in the early 1970s.

She is a former member of the Maryland Commission for Women and founder of the Maryland Women's History Project. The Heritage Center was her vision for the legacy of permanently honoring the diverse contributions of Maryland women.

director. Former Maryland First Lady Frances Hughes Glendening is president of the Heritage Center Executive Board.

The Center is located in donated space on the ground floor of the former offices of the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company at a corner which – serendipitously – turns out to have been the location of a 1910 street rally for women's suffrage. A larger site is being explored for the future.

Hall of Fame

Among other things, the Center provides a permanent home for the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame, which was established in 1985 by the Women Legislators of Maryland and the Maryland Commission for Women. Every year since that time up to five women who have made significant contributions have been chosen for induction into the Hall of Fame and their names added to a plaque in the Maryland Law Library.

Some have been historical figures like Clara Barton and Anna Ella Carroll, the Civil War spy. Portraits of historical figures, including former slave Harriet Tubman and St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, are now displayed in windows on Lexington Street along with portraits of living recipients. This reporter is the only Greenbelter so honored.

American Legion Post #136 Held Two Memorial Day Celebrations

by Carol Griffith

The American Legion hosted again this year their two very different ways of honoring our nation's fallen heroes – one loud and busy and one quiet and reflective.

On Sunday, May 30 Greenbelt Post 136 hosted veterans and friends participating in Rolling Thunder. Rolling Thunder is an annual motorcycle rally that is held at the Tidal Basin in Washington, D.C., during the Memorial Day weekend. Its purpose is to call for the government's recognition and protection of prisoners of war (POWs) and those missing in action (MIAs).

About 400,000 veterans were expected to ride through the area for the event and about 435 – a record number – came to Post 136 during the day. A breakfast buffet started at 7 a.m. and ended with the group leaving together for Washington at 8:15 a.m. After the ride to the Tidal Basin, bikers reassembled at Post 136 for a picnic featuring live music.

On Monday, May 31 at 10 a.m., Greenbelt American Legion Post 136 conducted its traditional Memorial Day Service at the Veterans' Memorial, located between the Roosevelt Center and Crescent Road. Approximately 175 people attended this solemn ceremony in spite of the very warm and humid weather.

Most attendees stood, many with their hands over their hearts, as a member of the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Junior ROTC accompanied by a Boy Scout presented the flag; "The Star Spangled Banner" was played; the Pledge of Allegiance was recited; and the Post's chaplain offered a prayer.

Special Guests

Post 136 Commander Harold Bullock welcomed attendees and introduced distinguished guests, including all seven members of the Greenbelt City Council, County Councilmember Ingrid Turner, Chair of the Prince George's County Council Tom Dernoga and Maryland State Delegate Anne Healey.

In her speech, Turner introduced some members of her family who came to the ceremony with her, noting that her late father, now buried at Arlington Cemetery, had spent 30 years in service of his country. She reminded listeners that America's debt to the valiant men and women of the service can never be repaid and that they have earned unending gratitude "We will never forget," she said.

Turner and Dernoga presented to Post 136 and the city on behalf of Prince George's County a proclamation recognizing Memorial Day as a day of observance and remembrance.

Denoga spoke briefly, pointing out Turner's own military service. He has always enjoyed attending Post 136 and Greenbelt's Memorial Day ceremony, he added.

Mayor Judith Davis presented a city proclamation to Bullock that expressed the sentiment that the city hereby "honors and pays tribute to the women and men who have given their lives in service to this country so that we may enjoy freedom, peace and prosperity." In her speech she made the sad observation that, since last Memorial Day, 15 Marylanders have died while serving the United States. She recounted having attended a military funeral at Arlington Cemetery and concluded that all who

Letters to the Editor

Special Thank You To Animal Control

This past Thursday our super-friendly cat Ani decided to be up a tree first thing in the morning. Not knowing what to do, I called the local fire department. (That’s what they do in the movies and on TV, right?) They said they could not help us and pointed us to “the city.” So I figured that might mean Public Works. Without hesitation, they said they would be able to help with a bucket truck. Only problem was, she was 20 feet up in our backyard and was inaccessible by truck. They pointed me, in turn, to Animal Control. I wasn’t sure that they would be able to handle something so high up.

I had to leave within an hour of discovering this “adventure,” so I called and left a lengthy message about our situation. When I called from where I was working to check in, they were going to head out and see about the situation. Unable to call again during the day while subbing at the elementary school, I rushed home at day’s end hoping to see Ani safe at home.

My husband, as luck would have it, was able to stick around to monitor the situation. When I walked in the door I heard Ani was uncooperative for a rescue mission attempted earlier. A large ladder and daring Kim from Animal Control tried to get her down but Ani held fast to the branches and they had to give up. She remained in the tree as a storm rolled in that evening. Up to that point, I had tried some maneuvers: trying to wrap a branch and haul a laundry basket up, coaxing her to a lower tree. Nothing worked.

After the storm, Kim returned with colleague, Lauren, to check on Ani. Hoping the storm had shooed her down, I am sure they were surprised to see the stubborn gal still up there. They were determined to get her down. They left and returned 10 minutes later, another ladder in hand and a team of support (names of whom I do not know, but equally wish to thank). Kim, with incredible bravery, wet shoes, wet cat, wet tree to deal with, climbed to the tippy top and snatched the cantankerous cat from her perch. Slowly creeping and rightfully visibly shaking from height and fear, Kim managed to land back on the ground a little scratched and with a soggy Ani to hand over.

With that, the ladder came down and the crew readied to leave. I stood in awe, tremendously thankful and without words to say enough how grateful I was.

I have volunteered, with my daughter, at Greenbelt Animal Shelter and worked with Kim every Saturday since last fall. She is there every day and on weekends. She, Susie and Lauren are a tremendously dedicated staff. Though I have donated to the shelter and tried to think up new ways to help publicize and earn money for this department, none of that seems enough to show gratitude and to support this wonderful organization. The services offered, the great care and dedication of this wonderful staff of our city’s Animal Control and Shelter is, I think, not nearly thanked enough for all that they do. I wish I could do more in thanks and support for them.

Please, if you are looking for an animal, adopt from Greenbelt’s Shelter. Support them through donations and if you have never needed their services, still know we should all be thankful that we have them. Because you simply never know when you might.

Probable Cause?

As one of the “two, white middle-aged women” referenced in Cynthia Newcomer’s letters (5/20, 6/3), I have to interject, particularly when the encounter mentioned was last reduced to a misleading “brown packet and money being exchanged.”

I was a craft vendor at the Green Man festival where a customer was interested in buying a pair of earrings I did not have on hand. We arranged to meet on a following weekend at the Farmer’s Market. Smack in front of the information table and two other witnesses, I held the earrings up for my customer’s view before returning them to a folded brown paper bag.

Cynthia Newcomer, who knows me and the other woman (and who has also received these same brown bags at my shows), was nearby and the three of us subsequently had a brief conversation. Police did not come running because, for one, to my knowledge there are no cameras trained on the market and, for another, this was not a suspicious interaction by a stretch. Context cannot be omitted; the Farmer’s Market is not known as a hotbed of illegal activity. Moreover, if I entertained a double life as a jewelry maker and drug lord,

Hacking Away for the Truth

“The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo,” a Swedish thriller-chiller, opens at Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday, June 11. The titled girl (Noomi Rapace) is a computer hacker who joins an investigative reporter (Michael Nyqvist) in seeking a 40-year-old missing person, the favorite niece (Ewa Froeling) of a well-to-do citizen (Sven-Bertil Taube). Based on a best-selling novel by Stieg Larsson, the film actively criss-crosses high-techery with traditional gumshoe ways.

Running time: 152 minutes. Unrated, but has obscenity, violence, nudity, sex and rape. English subtitles.

Corrections

Correcting the correction – last week in our attempts to set right the inaccurate description of the statement made at the Greenbelt Homes annual meeting concerning the embezzlement, what we meant to say was that our report of GHI President Suzette Agans’ remarks was incorrect, not that the remarks themselves were incorrect.

In the budget worksession story in last week’s paper, the list of unresolved issues was incorrectly attributed. The list was distributed at the May 19 worksession by Mayor Judith Davis and then added to by City Manager Michael McLaughlin.

The News Review regrets the errors.

CARES Offers Summer Tutoring

Greenbelt CARES will offer a four-session summer tutoring program for Greenbelt students completing grades 2-6. The program will be held in the Municipal Building Council Room, Wednesday mornings, July 7 – 28 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Space is limited. Greenbelt residents have first priority. There is a $15 charge for the program to cover the cost of tutoring materials.

Parents or students should call CARES (301-345-6660 ext. 2016) to register in advance. The program is in great demand and space is limited.

Green Ridge House Hosts Health Course

There will be a free seven-week course at Green Ridge House on managing chronic diseases starting on Tuesday, June 15 from 1:30 to 4 p.m. through July 27. The workshops will be held each Tuesday afternoon in the dining room and are open to the community. The course is sponsored by the Prince George’s Community College and area department on aging.

Intended for anyone with health problems that cause fatigue, pain or frustration, workshop participants will learn how to manage symptoms, fight fatigue, make daily tasks easier, get more out of each day and learn about nutrition and exercise. Topics to be covered include medication, nutrition, physical activity, communicating with one’s health care team, relaxation methods, handling frustration and developing problem solving skills.

For more information call Green Ridge House Service Coordinator Sharon Vanzego at 301-412-2480.

Folk Dance Party Summer Kick Off

by Jeri Holloway

Get a head start on the summer season with a folk dance party on Friday, June 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenbelt Youth Center. All are invited to join in celebrating the start of the group’s 14 years of dancing in Greenbelt. The group, founded by Roland Forbes and his late wife Terri, first started dancing in Beltsville 30 years ago.

There is no fee for this chance to dance to lively music, be with friendly people, have a few delicious snacks and decide whether to join the group for the season. Forbes has had experience in folk dance circles in the Washington, D.C., area for many years. His love of folk dancing is contagious and makes all of the dancers in the group want to become experts. During the spring session, the dances learned represented Israel, Greece, Italy, Bulgaria, Wales and Estonia.

Wear comfortable shoes. Partners are not necessary. Those who enjoy the dance party will have an opportunity to sign up for the summer session of the dance class, which is sponsored by the Greenbelt Recreation Department.

Senior Softballers Upend Dundalk

In a see-saw battle at home, the Greenbelters of the Baltimore Beltway Senior Softball League prevailed over Dundalk, 21-18, on Wednesday, June 2. Division-leader Dundalk went ahead with a five-run second inning: Greenbelt took an 8-5 lead in the third inning and the score shifted. Behind 21-16 in the ninth inning, Dundalk scored two runs but was shut down by a double play and a grab by back-peddling Larry Dandridge in short right field with base runners on the move.

For Greenbelt Jasper Pendergrass and Willie White socked home runs, White’s clearing the high left field fence by a good 10 feet. Pendergrass was joined in multi-hit games by Barry Clark, David Kerr, Fred Bohle, John Benish, Dandridge and pitcher-manager Ray Reed, who went all the way in his first game of the season. Now 7-6, Greenbelt also beat Dundalk earlier this spring.

The Greenbelters’ next home date is at Braden Field on Wed., June 16 at 10 a.m., for a double-header with Bowie Bronze.

Babysitting Course Offered Monday

Greenbelt CARES will offer a free babysitting course on Monday, July 12 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the second floor council room of the Municipal Building.

Each student will receive a packet of materials. The course is targeted toward students who have completed grades 5 through 8, and will teach the safety and responsibility issues of babysitting.

For more information call 301-345-6660, ext. 2016.

Jr. Ranger Program At Greenbelt Park

June Is Peace Month, Activities Abound

The Greenbelt City Council has designated June Peace Month. Throughout the month various organizations will sponsor activities to promote peace, social justice and diversity, all free and open to the community.
Saturday, June 12 from 5 to 9 p.m. there will be a potluck picnic and sing-along at Buddy Attick Lake Park in the group picnic area to remember and honor Esther Webb (1917-2009), longtime peace activist, GHI resident and co-founder of the Peace & Justice Coalition.

Sunday, June 13 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. is the “Bikes for the World” collection of donated used bicycles sponsored by the Greenbelt Baha’i Community at the Municipal Building rear parking lot.

Tuesday, June 15 from 7 to 8:45 p.m. there will be an interactive workshop for parents, teachers and caregivers by M.J. Park of Little Friends for Peace, “Creating Peace with Children,” at the Greenbelt Community Center. Pre-registration is requested but not required, by calling Marjory Donn at 301-474-1353.

Friday, June 18 at 7:30 p.m. there will be a special meeting of the Greenbelt Writers Group on “Poems for Peace” at the Community Center.

Sunday, June 20 from 10 a.m. to noon Joe Murray of Friends of Beaver Dam Creek will lead a guided nature walk featuring “The History of the White Pine as a Symbol of Peace,” starting at the end of Northway.

Monday, June 21 at the New Deal Café there will be a 7 p.m. screening of the film “Refusing to Be Enemies: the Zeitouna Story” about Jewish and Arab women seeking Middle East peace, followed by a discussion in this Reel & Meal program sponsored by the Peace & Justice Coalition.

Paper Artist Gross Has Gateway Show

“Pretty Little Things,” a display of cut paper pin-ups and other work by Sherill Anne Gross will be displayed at the Gateway Arts Center of Brentwood’s Arts Exchange through July 17. The exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays. There will be a free opening reception for the public on Saturday, June 19 from 5 to 8 p.m.

Gross is a Greenbelt Community Center artist-in-residence whose last exhibit, covered in the March 4 issue with a photo of one of her cut-paper art pieces, was displayed here in March.

Pretty Little Things examines depictions of women in mid-20th century America. Gross’ signatures are cut from paper and she knows how many pieces it took to make the rug behind the figure (6,375). The show is accessible, attractive and colorful with a clear-eyed nostalgia for the culture of 20th century America’s golden age and a firm embrace of a contemporary subculture. Women, as ideal figures, distanced by time yet very present, are revealed fresh with an objective eye and irresistible aesthetic, laying bare an insight that will travel with viewers as far as they’d like to take it.

The Gateway Arts Center is at 3901 Rhode Island Avenue in Brentwood. More information is available at http://www.pgparcs.com/Things_To_Do/Arts/Brentwood-Arts-Exchange-at-Gateway-Arts-Center.htm.

Which is not to say I am a particular champion of our police. Even so, I recognize that police need to use their experience and training to make judgments in deciding who to question. Blame it on the ills of society or those of testosterone, young men commit a disproportionate number of crimes statistically, so it follows that their activities would come under a little more scrutiny. I am pretty certain this knowledge is of no comfort to every law-abiding young guy who is just going about his business and feels hounded, whatever his race.

Newcomer expresses dismay that old Greenbelt is majority white while other areas of the city are predominantly African American. Old Greenbelt, which started as white-only, has had numerous families remain over several generations, while the newer areas of Greenbelt have seen their populations grow from an influx of people moving here from elsewhere. This is at least partial explanation. And while it's hard for some of us GHI-dwellers to conceive, not everybody likely appreciates the charm and excitement of living under lots of rules in aging houses with close proximity to their neighbors.

I do agree there is and has been racism in Greenbelt but it is inaccurate to use Che Sayles' unsuccessful run for council as a barometer of current negative racial sentiment and hostility toward "outsiders." If that was true given no other criteria, candidate Kelly Ivy, a white man with deep ties to Greenbelt, should have been elected.

From its origins, Greenbelt has come a distance. It could be useful to remember both that attitudes tend to lag behind laws, meaning each successive generation will be more open and that change is not always a straight line but more of a spiral. At times movement may seem regressive, when on the whole, it is actually going forward. My concern is that inflammatory statements can drive similarly minded or reasonable people apart and undermine what might otherwise be a fair cause.

2010 YOUTH TRIATHLON

On the morning of Saturday, June 5, the Greenbelt Recreation Department held a Youth Sprint Triathlon for children age 8-15. The race was held on Greenbelt Day Weekend and began with a 50 meter swim at the Greenbelt Aquatic and Fitness Center outdoor pool. Upon completing the swim, the children advanced to a transition area where they mounted their bicycles to ride a .75 mile bicycle course. After completing the biking portion of the race, participants ran a .7 mile course around the Buddy Attick Park lake path to the finish line at the park's bandstand. The first participant to cross the finish line was 11 year old Eric Freeman, Jr. Each participant received a medal and a Youth Triathlon t-shirt. Trophies were presented to the top finishers in each age group. Congratulations to all participants and thanks to the Greenbelt Police Department Bike Unit and the Greenbelt Recreation Department staff for a successful event! The following were the top finishers of the age groups represented in the race with their respective finish times.

an obligation and a duty to take that path as far as you can go.” He then asked the inductees to stand and led them in the Oath of Allegiance.

Natalie Watson, supervising immigration officer from the U.S. Citizen and Immigration Service, then led the inductees in the Pledge of Allegiance and handed each new citizen a certificate. The new citizens beamed with their families as they took pictures next to the American flag with their certificates in hand. They had arrived at last!

After the ceremony, I spoke with Grace Alaran from Nigeria. She has been in this country for 10 years, working with Catholic nuns in a group home. She said it was a struggle but she was doing her best and “I’m very happy!”

When asked about the process, she said it was a long one – the nuns wrote letters for her and the INS conducted extensive background checks by having family and members of her community write letters for her.

Alaran also went to see a lawyer who helped her review and submit a number of documents. “Everyone wants to check your background,” she noted ruefully.

A man with his family, bursting with pride, summed up with one sentence. “Now I can vote.”

The photograph by Carolyn Drake shows Greenbelters celebrating the inauguration on Jan. 20, 2009, at the New Deal Café. It has been included as a double-page spread in a large-format book “This Day of Change,” recently published by Courier Japon, which publishes a monthly magazine. Subtitled “132 Photographers Capture ‘Hope’ on January 20, 2009,” the book displays photographs taken in 79 countries and regions worldwide on Inauguration Day 2009. The editors commissioned 100 photographers, including Carolyn Drake, who lives in Turkey, but grew up in Greenbelt and was visiting here at the time.

This happened in 1991 and included Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkistan and Uzbekistan in Central Asia.

After Eleanor Roosevelt High School Drake had gone to Brown University. She took a photo class at nearby Rhode Island School of Design but did not start to get serious about photography until years later in New York City. Working as an interactive designer/producer at different multimedia companies, including Scholastic, she studied at the International Center of Photography in Manhattan and at Ohio University, won a Fulbright fellowship for a year in Ukraine and then moved to Istanbul when her boyfriend got a Fulbright there.

When shooting is finished for her in Central Asia, Drake hopes to put together a book of photography. In the meantime, her photos of Greenbelt were included in “This Day of Change: 132 Photographers Capture ‘Hope’ on January 20, 2009,” a Japanese publication timed to Barack Obama taking office.

“In this town,” she wrote in the book, “life simply goes on and the layers of our brief history help keep us on an even keel. From this vantage point, the hope offered by the Obama presidency is no radical departure but rather the writing of another chapter in our collective national psyche.”

Carolyn Drake’s work can be seen at <http://www.wipnyc.org/blog/lacma-presents-carolyn-drake> and at <http://www.poyi.org/67/02/index.php>.

Maryland, are astronaut Judith Resnick, former Dean of Women Adele Stamp, Athletic Director Deborah Yow and early oceanographer Eugenie Clark. Others are the late Congresswoman Gladys Noon Spellman, who lived in Laurel, and Bernice Sandler, who filed the first sex discrimination suit related to employment at a university and is considered the “Mother of Title IX,” the federal law that prohibits sex discrimination in education.

Former state legislator the late Pauline Menes, whose district once included Greenbelt, is recognized with a Public Leadership Fund in her name. Menes served for 40 years in the Maryland House of Delegates. “The fund will provide programs and opportunities for girls and women to develop leadership skills and assume leadership roles,” according to the program for the opening ceremony.

Maryland Poet

A second fund honors the late Maryland poet Lucille Clifton for encouraging girls and women to enter various fields related to the arts. Donations to both funds may be made through the Maryland Women’s Heritage website at www.mdwomensheritagecenter.org.

Three women who have served as Maryland’s First Lady currently serve as members of the board of directors of the Heritage Center. Beside its current President Frances Glendenning, they are Katie Curran O’Malley and Kendel S. Erlich. Former Bowie mayor and later county councilmember Audrey Scott is development chair for the organization. She also served as state director of the Office of Planning in the Erlich administration.

According to the opening celebration program, the Center is “dedicated to preserving and honoring the past, understanding the present and shaping the future by recognizing, respecting and transmitting the experiences, contributions and aspirations of Maryland women and girls of diverse backgrounds and regions.” It will open to the public on June 19.

The Plaque

The plaque honoring Greenbelt’s Virginia Beauchamp reads as follows:

Virginia Walcott Beauchamp

Because writing was once considered an immodest occupation for women, Virginia Beauchamp expanded the concept of literature to include women’s diaries, letters, minutes and family histories. An English Professor at the University of Maryland College Park, Beauchamp ensured that America’s unsung, all-but-forgotten women and their writings became better known and history had fewer missing pieces. In 1974, she established the state’s first Women’s Studies program.

She was inducted in 2003 to the Maryland Women’s Hall of Fame.

Attempts were made to steal two cars. A tan 2004 Dodge Intrepid was stolen from the 9100 block Edmonston Road on June 1 and was recovered in the 3200 block of 23rd Street, SE, Washington, D.C. with no arrests made. An unsuccessful attempt was made on June 1 to steal a 2000 Dodge Caravan from the 7700 block Hanover Parkway.

Two other stolen vehicles were recovered. A black 1999 Acura ATL reported stolen through Prince George's County Police was recovered May 29 on Green-

Victim Identified, Suspect Described

Police have identified the 16-year-old victim of the shooting on May 31 in the 5900 block of Cherrywood Lane as Jericka Chambers, 16, of Landover.

Investigators believe the shooting was not random. The suspect has been described by witnesses as a black male, 17 to 19 years old, approximately 5'11", 130 to 140 pounds with twisted dreads and facial hair. He was last seen wearing a white tank top, jean shorts, black shoes, white socks and carrying a black bookbag. The suspect has tattoos and goes by "Johnny B." There is no further information at this time.

Anyone with information on this case is asked to contact the Criminal Investigations Unit at 240-542-2133.

belt Road at Kenilworth Avenue with no arrests made. A red 2002 Dodge Intrepid reported stolen through the Metropolitan Police, was recovered June 1 in the 6200 block Springhill Court with no arrests made.

Ten reports of thefts from autos were received: 7600 block Greenbelt Road (DC tag), 6100 block Springhill Terrace (GPS unit), 6200 block Greenbelt Road (hand-capped placard), Greenbelt Metro parking lot, two incidents (GPS unit; pair of shoes and wallet), 6900 block Hanover Parkway (tools and a bag containing credit cards), 6400 block Ivy Lane (VA tags), 7900 block Mandan Road (DVD/TV/CD system, amplifier and speaker box), 9300 block Edmonston Road (signal meter), 7800 block Mandan Road (television).

Two acts of vandalism were reported. In the 7800 block Walker Drive a vehicle was damaged and in the Greenbelt Metro parking lot a car window was broken.

Birthday Weekend Offers Wide Range of Activities

by Jim Link

A smorgasbord of activities was offered to Greenbelt residents over the weekend, from Friday, June 4 through Sunday, June 6, to help celebrate the city’s 73rd birthday.

On Saturday afternoon at Greenbelt Community Center, our brains got taken apart, so to speak, by the charming Carol Clutterbuck during her workshop “Memory and the Brain.”

After explaining to 50 mostly senior residents the functions of the discrete components of the brain (cerebellum, stem and various lobes: frontal, parietal, occipital, temporal, ear), Clutterbuck gave a raft of tips to increase brain health.

Diet sensibly and exercise regularly, of course. “Eat small but frequent meals. I eat six or seven times a day,” said Clutterbuck. This minimalist excess apparently works for the tall, slender, graceful Holy Cross Hospital counselor.

Clutterbuck claimed that memorizing lists of words is made easier by linking them in a story. Giving a list of 10 words, she challenged her audience to create their own: Barbara Rondeau and Mayor Judith Davis concocted two very surreal, whimsical doozies.

It was reassuring to hear that often our momentary memory lapses are not that at all. If we forgot where we put our eyeglasses or why we came into a room, “it is not a senior moment but more of a multi-tasking moment because we have too much going on; we are being pulled by too many tasks and duties,” according to Clutterbuck. Less talented or more leisurely folk rarely lose their eyeglasses.

The Peace and Justice Coalition for Prince George’s County sponsored a workshop on envisioning and implementing peace, conducted by Marj Donn, Lucy Duff and Donna Hoffmeister on Sunday afternoon at the Greenbelt Community Center. Adults read “peace stories” (folk tales, fairy tales, legends) to children; the children then drew peace with crayons, magic markers; adults pinned the peace pictures to a bulletin board.

Lucy Duff read “Ferdinand the Bull,” who refused to be goaded into hatred or conflict, to a rapt audience of four. Beth Anderson demonstrated how to make origami peace cranes; the Japanese crane, she said, symbolizes peace, much like the dove. Amber Youhouse, Miss Greenbelt 2010, was grateful for the lesson.

Community Garden

Just outside the east side of the Community Center, Lesley Riddle, arborist, horticulturalist and assistant director of Public Works in Greenbelt, presided over the Three Sisters Garden. Sitting in a circle, she and Greenbelters Jean Newcomb, Bob and Maggie Cahalan, Cathy Webb and Steve Kane basked in the humidity and dispensed horticultural wisdom.

No pesticides are used on the garden, which includes spinach, corn, tomatoes, squash, kale, radishes and beans. Corn, beans and squash are called the three sister vegetables because they “help” each other; the beans and squash replenish the soil when it is depleted by the corn, explained Bob Calalan.

The group hopes to establish two more community gardens, one in Empirian Village (West), another in Schrom Hills Park (East). Thus the Three Sister Gardens, planted with the three sister vegetables in three disparate locations, would mirror the horticultural, racial and gender diversity of Greenbelt.

Business was very brisk at the Aquatic & Fitness Center for Memorial Day weekend this year. Temperature is always a significant factor with regard to attendance and revenues for the outdoor pool. The weather during the 2010 Memorial Day weekend made for a perfect day at the outdoor pool.

Our Greenbelt Concert Band Adds Festivity to Weekend

by Altoria Bell Ross

Conductor Tom Cherrix and the Greenbelt Concert Band wished the city a happy 73rd birthday by performing a variety of compositions on Sunday, June 6 at the Community Center. The band played an arousing rendition of “Let There Be Peace on Earth” in honor of Ronald Culpepper. Culpepper, a member of the band for 44 years, died last winter. The tribute also was in memory of D-Day, taking place that day 66 years ago.

The audience heard more history when told of a 1976 Greenbelt contest to come up with a march for the city. The result was an upbeat, merry “Heart of Greenbelt March.” In addition, the band played “The Valiant Years,” which was a television film score of Winston Churchill’s World War II memoirs. Snare drums in the selection gave the piece a military flair.

Moving further around the world, the band played the “Russian Sailor’s Dance,” based on the first Soviet ballet in 1927, “Red Poppy.” The selection was romantic and colorful. Assistant conductor Jim Moore led the band in “Incidental Suite” that had three movements and could have been the sound track for a James Bond movie with its bold, brassy and dramatic flavor. Speaking of scores, “Tropical Adventure,” published in 1954 was reminiscent of the theme song for the television show, “I Love Lucy” with its big band sound. The band also transitioned through three moods with “Lowtide,” “Christina,” and “Strange Refrain.” The arrangements included big swells interspersed throughout the movements.

Added to these arrangements, soloists treated the concert goers. Caroline Cherrix wooed the audience with her alto saxophone lead in “Nightfall” and Linda Koch began and ended the concert on a patriotic note. She opened the concert with the “Star Spangled Banner.” Unfortunately, the band overshadowed the soprano but in “God Bless America,” the audience could clearly hear Koch’s beautiful voice.

Through the concert the band transported the audience through beauty, peace and boldness making it indeed a happy birthday.

Local Talents Showcased At GAC this Weekend Only

by Gerald C. Martin

When Penny Martin suggested that the Greenbelt Arts Center should do more to encourage local playwrights it was said, “Great idea! You’re in charge.” Over the past several months she has put together “Points of View,” a collection of seven one-act plays that will be performed this weekend only.

More than 25 plays were submitted and a committee consisting of Ginny Zanner, Misha R’kingsley and Brian St. George selected those that would be most entertaining and not require massive set changes from one show to the next. A lot of top quality plays had to be set aside but the seven chosen offer a good cross section of our local talent. A very brief synopsis of the plays may suggest what theatre-goers will see. And they are all in 3D! No special glasses required!

In “Mama Says” by Peggy Rooney, a woman relives bits of her life and grows from a teenager to a senior citizen in just a few moments.

In Matt Arbach’s “Q & A,” an ordinary citizen is interrogated by an anonymous government agency. That seems altogether too plausible these days.

“This Play Sucks” by James H. Wise presents an actor who decides to alter the play in mid-performance while the other actor valiantly tries to keep the show on track. It definitely does not suck.

Halloween gets a little out of hand in “The Pranksters” by John Hayes, when a pair of very strange trick-or-treaters come calling.

Erica Smith’s “4,3,2,1” features a young man who fears his ex-girlfriend is trying to kill him. And maybe he’s right.

In “The Magic Dream Machine” by Stephen C. Yednock, Jr., a handicapped man overcomes his disability through his imagination and inspires some young people along the way.

Four short segments from “Freshly Squeezed” by Paula Stone are interspersed throughout the show featuring a customer trying to outfox a used car salesman, a couple of women trying to find the perfect bra, a house call from the Grim Reaper and a conversation among chickens.

Many of the actors are Greenbelters and include both old and new faces on stage. The Greenbelt Arts Center is trying to arrange for a sign interpreter for at least one of the performances but as of press time arrangements are incomplete. Show times are Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m., this weekend only.

For information and reservations call 301-441-8770 or visit www.greenbeltartscenter.org.

served their country deserved such honor.

Other Speakers

Genney Bonnie, president of the Post 136 Auxiliary; Chris Fields, commander of Post 136 Sons of the American Legion; and Thomas Dyson, representing the Greenbelt George H. Seal Memorial Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans, spoke briefly. Dyson reminded attendees of the great service of today’s veterans, many of whom have served multiple tours of duty and many of whom are returning with many needs for support. He encouraged listeners to find a way to help these veterans and to set the example for others to help as well.

Wreaths were laid at the Memorial by members of the Auxiliary, Sons of the American Legion and Disabled Veterans and by Mayor pro tem Emmett Jordan representing the city. A trumpeter played “Taps” concluding the ceremony.

Kids Fishing Day Requires Registration

Patuxent Research Refuge in Laurel will host a Kids Fishing Day at the National Wildlife Visitor Center on Saturday, June 12.

For the first time youth are required to register for this annual event. The event will target youth who have little or no fishing experience. Staff hope that by limiting the numbers of participants they will be able to provide a higher quality fishing experience.

Youth ages 15 and under can register for either an 8:30 or 9:30 a.m. time slot by calling the Refuge program registration number 301-497-5887. Request accessibility accommodations when registering. One adult should accompany each child.

The Refuge will supply all fishing poles and bait for children. No personal fishing gear will be needed or allowed during this event. After checking in at the Visitor Center and participating in pre-fishing activities such as casting and fish handling, youth will be allowed to fish in one of two nearby lakes for a minimum of one hour. The event will end between 11 and 11:30 a.m.

Green Ridge House Strikers Win Wii Bowling Tourney

On Friday, May 14 the first Greenbelt Wii Bowling Tournament took place in Greenbelt’s city council chambers at the Municipal Building. Beginning in March, 12 players (six from Green Ridge House and six from the community) had participated in a Wii Bowling league leading up to the tournament. Throughout the six weeks of league play, members’ scores were recorded and averaged to get their seed in the tournament.

The tournament was played both as individuals and as teams with the Green Ridge House Strikers winning the champion, runner-up and team trophies. Congratulations go to Linda Rexon as champion and Susan Edmiston, the runner-up, for their performance in the final tournament game. Rexon’s score was 194; Edmiston’s 192.

The Community Center Mighty Miis consist of Thelma Loret deMola, Barbara Payne, Jim Marley, Odella King, Frank Pearlman and Gertie Wines. The Green Ridge House Strikers team includes Linda Rexon, Susan Edmiston, Elaine Pearson, Barbara Hardisty, Gary Bladestock and Herb Elliott.

There will be another chance at the traveling trophy next fall.
